

THE DAILY EXPRESS.

TERRE-HAUTE:

MONDAY, JULY 22, 1861

By our dispatches this morning it will be seen that important transfers in military command are about to be made.

We are glad to see that the entire Republican press throughout the Union warmly approve the resolution of Mr. Crittenden, and that there is no doubt of its receiving almost a unanimous vote in the House of Representatives.

We give this morning a part of the Inauguration of the traitor Davis to his rebel Congress. It is the most remarkable document we venture to say, that has ever been issued. The unblinking impudence and the unparalleled mendacity of his declarations, are astonishing beyond measure. The balance of the Message was not sent through last night, but will be received today.

Is the estimation of the enemies of Mr. Lincoln, he has undergone a curious change of character in a little while. Not long ago, he was nothing more than a common country court lawyer, fit only for splitting rails. Now he is a military colossus—a sort of Napoleon—who has put on a pair of high heel boots and is striding over the liberties of the country. How he must be flattered at the progress he is making towards greatness. He will certainly make something after a while.

By the Cincinnati papers of Saturday we learn that a detachment of troops from the division of Gen. Cox suddenly came upon a force of rebels numbering fifteen hundred on the Kenawa, and after fighting them until they had expended their ammunition were compelled to retire. The Federal troops lost four killed and one mortally wounded. Col. Norton of the 21st Ohio Regiment was wounded and taken prisoner.

Gen. J. J. Crittenden is believed to be at Winchester fortifying his position, and Gen. Patterson is preparing to turn it.

Speaking on Saturday. We are informed that Col. Cookerly made a speech to the people, on Saturday, in Sugar Creek Township. We have not learned the tenor of his remarks, but hope they were not base.

At Frazer-ton we learn there was a large meeting, which was addressed by Colonel Thompson and Hon. W. E. McLean. A gentleman who was present informs us that the speech of Mr. McLean was an excellent one, earnest, patriotic and eloquent, having a good effect on the audience. Col. Thompson's speech was of course good.

At Sanford's Station Col. Edwards, Chas. E. Hasford, and A. B. Crane had each addressed a large and attentive crowd, in strong Union speeches, and at night Col. Edwards addressed another large meeting at New Goshen. Thus are the friends of the Union and good government alive and active.

Some men have a wonderful fondness for building up men of straw that they may show how much smarter they are than other people, by knocking them down again. Don Quixote was a man of that sort, and he went about, armed to the teeth—he and his man Sancio—to fight wind-mills, flocks of sheep and other similar adversaries. He secured an immortal reputation at the business. Jack Falstaff was another one of these invincible heroes, and it was no trouble for him, when he had sack enough on hand, to run his sword through a dead man, bluster over Balaclava, or whip a dozen or so men in buckram every morning before breakfast. He secured an immortal reputation too, and will be known and talked of as long as people know anything or talk at all. The fact is, it is a profitable occupation for some folks—for if they were not permitted to puff and blow and sweat and fume over their own fancies, the world would have no knowledge of their existence—and this would be both wrong and unfortunate, for the manifest reason that every body must have been made for some purpose.

We have a modern class of these brave knights, but whether they come up to the Quixote and Falstaff standard we shall not undertake to decide. One thing we do know, that if they do not, it is not because they are not constantly trying to do so. And we commend them for this, for they show themselves to be Christian knights by doing whatever their hands find to do, with all their might. They certainly follow in the foot-steps of their predecessors—although they may be a long distance behind.

Lately these gentlemen, from the mere force of a cultivated and over-worked imagination, have conceived the idea that somebody or other is about to try and take away from them the freedom of speech—that is put a pad lock upon their jaws—so that they cannot indulge their fancy of abusing Mr. Lincoln to their hearts content. Now, if there is anybody, anywhere, doing any such thing as this, we enter our solemn protest against it. It is an outrage upon human rights, a blow at the freedom of the citizen, which must not be tolerated for a moment. They must be permitted to swear at Mr. Lincoln to their hearts content. They must be permitted to curse him when standing up or lying down, when walking or running, when awake or asleep, when eating or drinking, in his head, hands, feet, legs, shoulders, back, joints and marrow—in fact, up and down, and all over. And we pledge ourselves to look and see the fun. Mr. Lincoln will feel bad about it—but then we can't help that.

But there's one thing we feel like saying, which is, that they should keep their hands off the Government, and not abuse that, and not talk about the North being all wrong, and the South being all right; and not try to stop the war until the Rebels are brought into proper subjection to law, and not try to divide the now united North, so as to give the enemies of the Union the advantage, and not charge our brave soldiers with having gone off on a crusade against Southern slavery. If they will only not do these things, we think we may safely promise that Mr. Lincoln will stand and take all the rest, like a man.

As was predicted, the first grand battle for the glorious old flag was fought yesterday, and resulted in a glorious victory for the Government and the right. A nation of freemen rejoices to-day, and sympathizers with treason howl with agony.

By our dispatches it appears that a regiment of negroes was in the battle on the side of the rebels yesterday. Where is negro equality now?

Union Club.

According to previous notice, a meeting was held at the Court House, on Friday evening, July 19th, 1861, for the purpose of forming a "Union Club."

On motion of S. H. Potter, Mr. Harry Ross was called to the Chair, and Isaac M. Brown appointed Secretary.

After the object of the meeting had been made known, by E. B. Allen, a Committee to draft a plan of organization, rules, &c., were appointed, as follows:

W. K. Edwards, T. J. Forrest, J. E. Gullick, Jas. Hook, S. H. Potter, P. R. O'Riley, and Wm. Coats.

During the absence of the Committee, the assembled multitude was addressed by Col. R. W. Thompson, in a short but able argument in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war, contending, in the course of his remarks, that there was no "middle ground" in the struggle now going on for the maintenance of our Government. He said that all must take a stand, either for the Union or against it—it could not be otherwise. He was glad to see this meeting take place at this time, for he had no doubt but the cause of the Union was this day triumphant. He was willing to trust all to the President of the United States and the old hero of Lundy's Lane—in their hands the country is safe, and he was confident of the success of the old flag.

There were now in the field two hundred and fifty thousand determined men, and Congress had granted for the same purpose two hundred and fifty thousand more, and it needs but, one, two, or even three millions could be rallied under the old flag for the protection of the Union and our sacred institutions.

Mr. Lucius Ryce followed Col. T. in a decidedly witty and argumentative speech. He was warmly for the cause of the Union, and referred to the meeting, composed of all patriots, held at this place previous to the bombardment of Fort Sumter. That meeting was largely in favor of compromise, but the times had changed since that day, and now there was nothing to compromise and no one left to compromise with.

We had but one duty to perform, and that was to stand up like men—like patriots—and meet the enemies of our country and put them down. This was the duty of all, and the man who would evade the issue would be marked and the seal of condemnation put upon him for all time to come. He thought we had a very few such men, however, in our midst, yet he did not feel disposed to give any names—time would ferret them out. Old party ties had disappeared, and he trusted there never would be an effort made to reorganize them.

Mr. R. was bitterly opposed to neutrality, and compared it to a company of men holding a house in common. He supposed the house to be on fire, and one of the party locking the door to his room and denying the right to pass through it for the purpose of getting at the fire to put it out. Must we stand and see the house burn down?—no; we must burst the doors and pass through, wherever we find it necessary, to accomplish our purpose.

Mr. R. closed with a patriotic appeal to all loyal citizens to stand firm for the cause of the Union at all hazards. It was no time to stop and count the cost—"the Union must and shall be preserved."

The Committee on Organization, through J. F. Gullick, made the following report, which was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, several of the States composing the United States of America have adopted ordinances of secession, whereby they have declared themselves independent of the Government of the United States, and inaugurated a war to maintain said independence, and to destroy the Union of the States, and Whereas, it is the duty of all loyal citizens of the United States to maintain the authority of the Federal Government and to uphold the Union and prevent it from dissolution, and Whereas, the undersigned, citizens of the county of Vigo and State of Indiana, representing our political opinions, the respective names or distinctions, to aid the cause of the Union by all the means in our power, and do hereby agree to form ourselves into a Club, pursuant to the provisions of the following

CONSTITUTION.

Sec. 1. This Society shall be called the Union Club of Vigo County.

Sec. 2. The officers shall consist of a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Sec. 3. All persons, of whatever political party, may become members of this Society upon subscribing this Constitution.

Sec. 4. This Society shall meet on Friday of each week.

Sec. 5. The members of this Club pledge themselves each to the other, that they will support the Government of the United States in all lawful and just measures to put down and suppress the rebellion now existing, and restore the integrity of the Union throughout the limits of the United States.

A record was then introduced for the purpose of recording the names of those who desired to enroll themselves in the cause of the Union, and a large number of names were given.

It was ordered that the record be left at the Post Office, to give all persons a chance to join the Club.

On motion of James Hook, a Committee was appointed to report permanent officers at the next meeting. The Chair appointed Jas. Hook, N. Erlanger, H. D. Scott, P. R. O'Riley, and P. R. O'Riley.

The minutes of this meeting were ordered to be published in the Express and Terre Haute Journal, when the meeting adjourned to Friday night next. H. ROSS, Pres't.

THE JOURNAL remains of the Democratic party held a meeting in the Court House last Saturday, for what purpose we know not. If these were not such solemn times, we would feel constrained to laugh at the idea of a few hackneyed politicians endeavoring to hold the party together in the vain hope of once more receiving their portion of the public trust. Contrary to the wishes and expectations of the leaders of the little faction that got up this meeting, Judge Claypool made a good Union speech on the occasion. He was for sustaining the country, and we are proud to say that he has the majority of the Democratic party with him—such a disposition as this is highly commendable. —Port-Harbor.

PEOPLE COMING NORTH.—The trains from Louisville to this city average more passengers in one day than they take from here southward in a week. The reason is apparent. Thousands of people in the South are fleeing from the despotism and mob law of the region, and are glad to get away at the sacrifice of business and property—thankful if they escape with their lives and without impediment into the rebel army.—Ind Jour.
